The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the third in a series of three articles by Ralph H. Taylor analyzing bills affecting agriculture which were signed or vetoed by the Governor.)

Fortunately for the people back home, all the bills which are introduced during a legislative session aren't written into the statute books of the state. Thousands die in committees without ever reaching the floor of the Legislature. Hundreds of others are killed in either the Senate or Assembly—and when the Legislature has done its best, or its worst, as the case may be, the Governor uses the veto axe to still others.

Good bills as well as bad bills often get lost in the legislative shuffle, but of recent years the farming industry has been more interested in defeating dangerous legislation than in securing the enactment of its own program.

Governor Olson vetoed 146 bills enacted by the Legislature this year, but the Legislature over-rode his veto in eight instances. The Legislature itself killed 2,669 of its brainchildren, including 2,590 bills and 79 proposed constitutional amendments.

Several important farm bills were among those vetoed by the Governor. Among the measures which won't become law, due to the Governor's refusal to sign them, are the following:

S. B. 3, raising the maximum weight limits for weigh fees on small trucks.

S. B. 257, dealing with branding of cattle on the neck.

S. B. 393, reducing the maximum tax under the Personal Income law.

S. B. 1016, clarifying the definition of "implements of husbandry" in the Vehicle Code.

A. B. 560, comprehensive amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act. The definition of "agricultural labor" was not included in the final bill.

A. B. 928, deducting bridge tolls from the computation of gross receipts under the 3 per cent Truck Tax act.

A. B. 1026, requiring citrus fruits for intrastate shipment to be in packed boxes.

A. B. 1039, to permit spreading of losses over a period of years under the Personal Income Tax Act.

A. B. 1717, permitting the Director of Agriculture to set cream prices in milk stabilization areas.

A. B. 2161, to eliminate the position of Immigration and Housing.

A. B. 2162, transferring the Division of Immigration and Housing from the Department of Industrial Relations to the Department of Public Health.

A. B. 2651, exempting the producer who rolls or crushes grain of his own production from regulation under the Feeding Stuffs Law.

The Governor's veto of the bill which would have permitted the spreading of losses over a period of years under the Personal Income Tax Act was a serious setback to the farming industry. Farmers, by the very nature of their business, often have heavy losses for several years running, due to crop failures, freezing weather, unfavorable marketing conditions, or other factors beyond their control. But when the farmer has a good year and hopes to pay off some of the debts accumulated in lean years, he is taxed on his entire net income for the year—and is not permitted to make deductions for losses in the years before. Governor Olson's veto of the bill which would have corrected this injustice will cost California farmers many thousands of dollars in income taxes which they should not be required to pay.

ASSAULT CHARGED IN DISTURBANCE AT SLIGER MINE

William Harmon, mill foreman at the Sliger mine, is at liberty on $300 bail pending appearance Thursday afternoon for a hearing on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, brought by Earl Shefflin.

It was reported unofficially that Shefflin charged Harmon with hitting him with a ball of iron from a ball mill. What provocation or other circumstances there may be may not have been in the case was not known.

SNOW HERALDS WINTER IN TRENCHES

Moscow, London Report
Axis Being Hammered
By Land, Air Forces

LONDON, (UP)—Snow has begun to fall in Finland, it was reported today as the millions of Russians and Germans on the eastern front were fighting desperately against time as well as each other, the Russians seeking to stabilize the front, the Germans to win a victory which would justify their lavish expenditure of life.

Nazis Hard Hit

MOSCOW, (UP)—Red army counter-attacks were reported in war dispatches today to have smashed German concentrations with huge casualties in the Ukraine, central, northern and Arctic fronts.

Strikes Increase

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, (UP)—Extension of Nazi repressive measures, including martial law and summary executions, to key areas throughout Norway, was reported imminent today. Advances indicated that Norwegian Quislings had lost control of the situation and that strikes were spreading.

By UNITED PRESS

The Royal Air Force swept the skies of Europe today in an offensive against the Axis that found the British war planes pounding northern Italy in a huge attack and speeding "by the hundreds" to the aid of Russia on the eastern front.

Britain's air offensive coincided with significant and far-reaching moves in Japan whereby Emperor Hirohito acted to take Japan's army out of the direction of the aggressive general staff and under the direct control of a moderate responsible only to him. He accompanied this step with a move to reinforce the prestige of the cabinet headed by Prince Fumimaro Konoye, as opposed to radical elements eager to push Japanese expansion regardless of whether it means war with the United States, Britain or Russia.

London revealed that the British have dispatched hundreds of Hurricane and Spitfire fighter planes to Russia and that many of these planes already are in operation against Germany in the East.

Probe Of Films Is Supported

WASHINGTON, (UP)—John T. Flynn, Economist and columnist, asserted before a senate investigating sub-committee today that the motion picture industry has "suppressed" one side of the national debate over war and has created a "tremendous engine of propaganda for controlling and inflaming the public mind."

Flynn, testifying on a resolution for an investigation of alleged war propaganda films and radio programs, charged that eight major companies control the production and distribution of films and are lending their efforts to the interventionist cause.

Flynn derided the industry's recent claim, presented by its counsel, Wendell L. Wilkie, Republican presidential candidate in 1940, that it has merely depicted Nazism in its true colors.

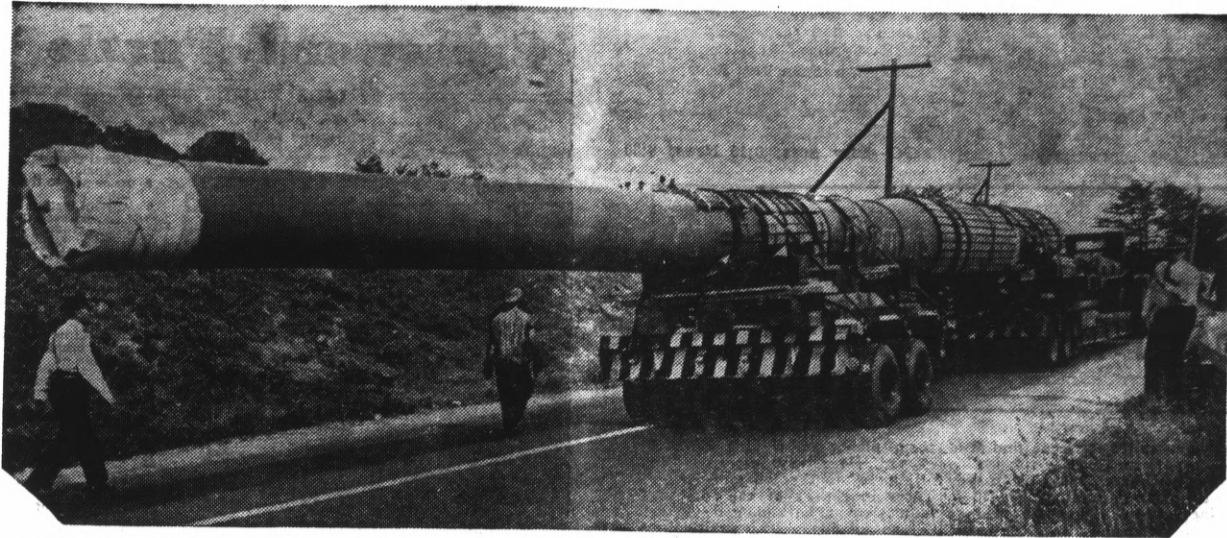

"Gentlemen, nobody has brought against these gentlemen as an offense the charge of being against Hitler," he said. "There are 130,000,000 people in the United States and I suppose 129,000,000 of them or more are against Hitler. It does not take any courage to be against Hitler—particularly if you are over draft age. Hitler is very easy to hate. But I remark in passing that there is a great difference between hating Hitler and hating fascism."

Appeal Is Filed In Liquor Conviction

The recent conviction of Paul Gilbert in Justice Court on charges of violating Section 61 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control act, relative to the sale of liquor to minors, is appealed to the Superior Court in an action on file Thursday.

Justice of the Peace Maybelle Timm was a Wednesday caller from Kelsey.

Moving Up Defenses to Keep the U. S. Free

A huge coast defense rifle, weighing 145 tons, is shown being transported from Tiverton, R. I., to Fort Church, near Compton, R. I., for installation in the fort's coast defenses. The 68-foot-long rifle was hauled on a double trailer by a tractor, mounted on 38 huge pneumatic-tired wheels, over the state's automobile roads. Average speed of the haul was two miles per hour.

Maryjane "Stolen" From Crossing

Has anyone seen Maryjane? She was kidnapped sometime during the weekend from the pedestrian crossing on Broadway near Washington Street where, each school day, it has been her custom to warm the drivers of passing cars that school children are crossing the highway.

Chief of Police Ralph Jones says he is satisfied that Maryjane was kidnapped because she never before has gone away without reporting her intentions. Maryjane had better come home and tend to her work, before some child is injured at the crossing.

Former Youngs Lady Called

Mrs. Mary Ann Andrews
Died Late In June At Home Of Her Daughter

Mrs. Mary Ann Andrews, 93, a pioneer in Placerville and in the latter years of her life a resident of the Youngs district of this county, passed away on June 22 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. O. Talbot, at Fort Worth, Texas, where she had resided for the past five years.

A native of French Village, Sinclair County, Illinois, Mrs. Andrews came to California across the plains by covered wagon in the pioneer times in company with her parents. The family located in Placerville but their stay here was limited by the failure of the mother's health and they returned to Illinois.

There the subject of this sketch was married to Daniel Andrews, who was engaged in growing cotton in Mississippi, where the couple made their home until 1878, when Mr. Andrews passed away. A few years later, Mrs. Andrews returned to California and to El Dorado County, residing in the Youngs district where she kept house and helped to care for an uncle.

Following her uncle's death at the age of ninety-nine years, Mrs. Andrews joined her daughter in Texas.

Despite her advancing years, she was young in mind and in spirit and in making the move from California to Texas the woman who had crossed the plains by covered wagon, traveled to Fort Worth by the latest transportation development, the airplane.

Mrs. Andrews' health had continued to be all that might be asked until nearly a year ago when she suffered a pelvic fracture in a fall. Pneumonia was a complication which caused her death.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. W. O. Talbot, of 2500 Fifth Avenue, Fort Worth, Mrs. Andrews is survived by three grandchildren and by two great grandchildren.

She will be remembered kindly by a large circle of friends whom she gathered unto herself during her residence in the Youngs district.

Mrs. Ida Tappan, of Youngs, was a visitor in the county seat on Wednesday. Mrs. Tappan received a visit during the summer from her sister, Dr. S. L. Ashworth, of Lincoln, Nebraska, who was in the west as a delegate to the national convention of Business and Professional Women, held at Los Angeles.

SNOW REMOVAL PLANS RUSHED

Circumstances Hint At Plans For Revision Of Maintenance District

Plans are being rushed by the Division of Highways to insure carrying out of the Highway Commission's order making U. S. Route 50 an all-year road across Echo summit.

The five-acre site for the new maintenance station from which snow removal is to be carried out in the comparatively short stretch across the summit is being cleared and carpenters on Wednesday began the building of foundation forms.

The work is being carried out under the supervision of E. D. Willis, of Placerville, maintenance superintendent for the Division of Highways in this area.

A bare possibility that the Division of Highways is considering a re-districting of maintenance districts to provide for administration of U. S. Route 50 maintenance from the westerly county line to the Nevada state line is seen in the circumstance that Willis is in charge of building the new maintenance station.

During the recent past, the eastern limit on U. S. Route 50 for the district for which Willis is responsible has been somewhere in the vicinity of Strawberry Resort.

The fact that Willis is in charge of building the maintenance station at the summit is believed to indicate plans by the Division of Highways to extend his district to the Nevada line on U. S. Route 50.

Willis said Wednesday night he has no information on the subject and that he is merely following instructions.

He pointed out that the Highway Commission's order for snow removal was issued August 29th and said that on September 2 the site for the station had been selected and clearing was started the next day.

"The sites for the buildings have now been cleared and work of clearing the rest of the site continues," he said. "Tool sheds and quarters for a watchman are near completion and carpenters began work on the forms for the main buildings Wednesday morning."

"We have to prepare for some foundation pillars and we hope to pour the foundations by the latter part of the week. In any event, we hope to push the job right along."

According to an announcement last week by Frank W. Clark, Director of Public Works, the Echo Summit station will consist of four major buildings, a bunkhouse, garage, boiler house and lubrication storage building.

Two rotary plows and two pusher type plows will be included in the station equipment.

ANOTHER NAZI SLAIN IN OCCUPIED FRANCE

BERLIN (UP)—The official German news agency DNB reported from Paris today that a communist had shot and seriously wounded a police official at Douai, near Lille.

The agency said that the police official was shot three times by an assailant who rang the bell of the official's home and fired as soon as the door was opened.

The attacker was reported to have escaped.

THE PRESIDENT TALKS TONIGHT

Will Review International
Situation In Radio Address
At 6 P. M., Pacific Time

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Roosevelt in a radio address tonight will give the American people the facts of the international crisis in simple English which will leave no questions un-answered, Secretary Stephen T. Early said today.

Working on the final draft of the message he will deliver at 6 p. m. Pacific time, Mr. Roosevelt conferred this morning with congressional leaders of both parties.

Because Mr. Roosevelt believes the speech will leave no immediate questions unanswered and because he feels no important additional news will develop tomorrow morning, he cancelled Friday's regular semi-weekly press conference.

Participating in the congressional conference were Vice President Wallace, Senate Democratic Leader Albin W. Barkley, Ky.; Senate Republican Leader Charles McNary, Ore.; Chairman Tom Connally, D. of Texas, of the senate foreign relations committee; Acting Speaker of the House Clifton Woodrum, D. Va.; Acting House Democrat Leader John Cochran, Mo.; House Republican Leader Joseph Martin, Jr., Mass., and Chairman Sol Bloom, D. N. Y., of the house foreign affairs committee.

There was a tendency to discount earlier speculation that the President would ask modification or repeal of the neutrality act.

The last time leaders of both major parties were summoned to the White House was May 27—a few hours before the President's last fireside chat during which he proclaimed an unlimited national emergency.

AUXILIARY FOR EAGLES PLANS INITIATION AND CARD PARTY

Placerville Eagles Auxiliary met Monday night with Mable Johnson, vice-president, in charge. In the business meeting two applications for membership were approved and plans were made for the card party on Friday, September 26th.

An initiation will be held at the regular meeting on September 22. Mrs. Mary Merryman and Mrs. Florence Eskew are on the entertainment committee and refreshments are being planned by Mesdames Ruth McGriff, Edna Plummer, Maggie Carpenter and Helen Carroll.

Three From County Join In Navy Service

The Sacramento district recruiting office of the Navy, reporting nineteen enlistments from the Sacramento region during August, lists three of the recruits as being from El Dorado County. They are, Frank Swartz and Andrew Swartz, of Cammino, and Basil Reddick, of Diamond Springs.

A Navy recruiting officer visits Placerville weekly on Tuesdays, and may be found from noon until three o'clock in the afternoon at Room One, in the basement of the post-office.

Horseless Carriage Useless In Parade

It was no fault of Placerville Parlor No. 9, N. S. G. W., that their stage coach failed to appear in the Admission Day parade at Oakland Tuesday.

Charles and Norman Henningsen took the stage to Oakland, where arrangements had been made for them to provide the team had trouble with the truck in which he was to haul them into Oakland, and before a substitute truck could deliver the horses, the parade was well under way.

So there was nothing to do but return the stage coach to Placerville.

FBI Radio Used In Spy Roundup

Station Set Up For Counter-Espionage
Fooled Nazi Gestapo

NEW YORK (UP)—An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation today testified at the trial of 16 alleged German spies that a short wave radio station set up by the FBI for counter-espionage purposes had been in direct contact with the German gestapo at Hamburg up to four days ago.

The agent's testimony meant that the FBI's station, which purported to be the tool of a German spy ring, had continued to fool the Nazi secret police for a few days after the current trial opened. The trial started last Wednesday and was adjourned to Monday when, it was indicated, contact with the gestapo at Hamburg was broken off.

The witness was FBI agent Morris H. Price, a radio expert, who operated the station at Centerport, Long Island, from May 25, 1940 on.

Druid Circle Announces Card Party Series

The Placerville Druid Circle perfected plans at its meeting this week for the first of its series of afternoon card parties, to be started on October 14th at 1:30 o'clock.

According to Twila Hill, Arch Druidess, the September 23rd meeting promises to be one of special interest with plans being made for an initiation, an observance of September birthday anniversaries, and a shower honoring Mrs. Katherine Besse, who recently has moved into her new home.

Mrs. Hattie Richmond and Mrs. Rose Shirar, current chairmen on refreshments and decorations, are naming their own committees to assist in the conclusion of plans for the evening.

Theater Party Fetes Ninth Birthday

Among those invited to share the occasion were Barbara Shirar, Betty Revas, Betty Jo Immel, Carolyn Smithson, Margaret Volz, Jeanie McGriff, Joyce Peirce, Florence Parnell, and Cherry and Karen Curtis.

COMMONS AIRS BRITISH AID TO RUSSIA

Churchill Defends His Aides Against Charges
Of Sabotaging Efforts

LONDON — (UP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill defended his government members against charges of sabotaging aid to the Soviet Union today amid bitter communist cries of "blackguard" and "dirty lie" in the House of Commons.

The debate arose when the Prime Minister defended Lt. Col. John T. C. Moore-Brabazon, aircraft production minister, against charges by Jack Tanner, head of the engineers union, that Moore-Brabazon had expressed hope Russia and Germany would destroy each other. The shouts of "dirty lie" came when Churchill accused Communist William Gallacher of taking orders "from a body outside this country."

Gallacher vainly demanded a withdrawal of the "insulting remark."

Churchill said that Moore-Brabazon was working hard to aid Russia against Germany and was responsible for sending hundreds of British fighter planes to the Soviet Union and he expressed regret that the minister's words had been construed by Tanner as indicating anything else.

Josiah Wedgwood, laborite, expressed concern regarding the number of British officers who surrendered to the French during the Syrian campaign, indicating belief that at least some of the surrenders were not necessary.

Wedgwood noted that the British outnumbered the French in Syria and asked whether it was "sufficiently understood" in the British army that there is "rarely any justification" for surrender of an unwounded officer.

In reply, Maj. Duncan Sandys, speaking for war secretary David Margesson, reported that 78 British officers had been taken prisoner in Syria of whom 15 are known to have been wounded.

Bomber Crashed In Timberland

TACOMA, Wash., (UP)—McChord Field officers said today an army bomber which disappeared Tuesday with six men aboard was reported sighted in the Cascade foothills 18 miles northeast of Enumclaw. There was nothing to indicate the fate of the occupants.

The report, given McChord Field by a farmer, said searching planes discovered the craft in a clump of trees in heavily wooded land between Seattle and the summit of the Cascades.

Twenty soldiers were immediately dispatched to the spot.

The bomber, a twin-motored ship, was last heard from at 3:50 a. m. Tuesday while on a routine night flight from McChord Field to Spokane and return. At that time it reported its position as within five minutes of Seattle.

El Dorado County airmen have been invited to join with Lodi fliers in a breakfast flight opening at Lodi airport Sunday morning, September 14, at 7:15 o'clock.

TWO COUNTY MEN INDICTED ON GOLD CHARGES BY U. S. GRAND JURY

Among several indictments returned by the federal Grand Jury at Sacramento the fore part of the week was one against G. N. Walker and L. S. Spears, of Greenwood, Sacramento papers reported.

The two were indicted on charges of submitting false affidavits to the U. S. mint, in violation of the gold reserve act of 1934.

The action of the Grand Jury probably explains the occasional visits in the county of known Secret Service operatives during the past few months.

HER HIGHNESS

by JOHN A. MOROSO

SYNOPSIS

Following the death of her parents, 13-year-old Minnie Fogarty escapes from her home when the Children's Society sends for her and is befriended by Pop Dolan, kindly old watchman at Wessell's big brewery. Sheltered in the comfortable office of the idle brewer, Min is very happy with Pop and his dog, Terry, who are devoted to the "Princess of Pilsen," as Pop calls her. All goes well until Min is informed she won the Calcutta Sweepstakes, and her ne'er-do-well brother, Danny, tries to get Min away from Pop so he can share her fortune. Bill Duffy, dapper young detective reveals that Danny's wife is in prison and is no fit guardian for Min. Then comes the news that Min's winning of the Sweepstakes was a bubble of a yacht, travel and marriage to the Prince of Wales breaks. She seems more than satisfied, however, when Bill says she will marry no one but him. Realizing it is for Min's good, Pop reluctantly accepts the offer of his wealthy employer, Andrew Wessell, to educate Min. Andrew, Jr., is greatly attracted to Min... and her brother, Danny, plans with Maxie Greenblum, his lawyer, to obtain money from the Wessells under threat of taking Min from them. Knowing Pop has a still, Danny blackmails the old man. Lonesome for Min, Pop becomes downhearted and is lax in attending to the still. One day he returns to find the brewery in flames. Pop risks his life to rescue Terry. Due to Danny's money demands, Mr. Wessell tells his son it would be unwise to marry into such a family. Then, too, Min had changed—some of her freshness and charm had gone. What he did not know was that Min longed for Pop and Terry. As soon as the flames of the fire, she goes in search of Pop.

CHAPTER I

Returning to the Bronx the night of the fire, Pop Dolan told his wife and sister-in-law what had happened. His job, his money, and even Minnie gone but Terry remained. There was plenty of room in the little flat for a cot for an old man and a rug for his old dog. "How much money have you got all told?" he asked. He was thinking of the winter ahead and the days beyond, a time that was to see strong young men, willing to work, standing in bread lines in every city in the country, women and children being fed at soup kitchens. Pop had been more than generous to the two women. He was content with shelter, a little food, a pipe, a book. It had been for years that he had saved all his extra earnings, putting the money into the cold water tank up in the brewery tower that had fallen before the flames.

Where, but a few hours before, gratitude had gurgled in the lean throat of the old maid sister-in-law there came remembrance at this question.

"Well," he insisted sharply, "how much?"

"I'll count it." She went to the kitchen and returned in a few minutes.

"Two hundred and twenty-five dollars and eighty cents," she replied.

"You're wrong; I gave you three hundred and fifty this afternoon."

"I put the rest in the bank."

"Let me see the bank book."

She pretended to hunt for it and then said that she had hidden it and had forgotten where.

Pop lit his pipe and puffed on it with bitterness in his heart. There was no use talking to the old wife; her mind was feeble. Her sister's mind was at the other extreme. In the remarkable hodge-podge of reading he had indulged in he had not missed King Lear.

"Well, Maggie," he said after long and deep thought, "I imagine that you've saved every bit of two to three thousand out of what I've sent you. Don't worry. I'm not going to get it from you. I'd have a swell chance if I did. But the dog and I stay here and eat until I land another job. See?"

Another job, for a man well over sixty, with the whole working system of the world upset and disordered! But Pop was no ordinary old man, any more than Terry was an ordinary old dog, content to lie down in front of a fire just because he was a bit weak in the legs.

"You feed us and make the money go as far as you can, Maggie," he said. She did not reply, pretending to be very busy tending up the room. "And if you don't, Maggie, old darling — Well, if you don't, I'll explain. Mom is mentally incompetent. I sent the money by postal money order to her and you've corralled it. I can find Minnie Fogarty and get the sub-station postal clerk and prove it, if you want me to. Will you be good?"

Maggie was silent. The money should be between her and the poorhouse—a golden wall twist her and a destiny looked upon by the poor with even greater dread than Potter's Field, that grim institution founded by the betrayal money of Judas Iscariot.

"Answer me. Will you do as I say? Or am I to get a lawyer to make you?"

"I'll run the place."

"Very good!"

Every morning, followed by the faithful and happy Terry, he left the flat in the good suit he had bought for his afternoon trips up to Beekman Hill when "Her Highness" was first attending the school for young ladies. And he always shaved. His shoe leather was in good shape. There were thousands like him walking the streets, asking for anything to do that a nice old man might do.

"What was your last job?" he was asked at one place.

"Watchman."

"Well," came the reply with the cheerful cynicism which is New York, "there's nothing to watch."

His ready laughter at this inclusive summation of the state of affairs made the proprietor of the small manufacturing plant wish that he could have a place for him. "Give me your name and address," he said, "and if I can find a corner for you I'll let you know. Honest, I mean it."

Every evening at sundown Pop returned to the flat and climbed the three flights of stairs, a cast-off newspaper under his arm for the silent hours before bedtime.

And then one evening, instead of entering to be greeted by the querulous mumbling of his wife and the furtive glances of the silent and ever fearful Maggie, he found a pair of young arms thrown from the shadows about his neck, a young cheek pressed against his, and a young heart wildly beating on his chest.

"Her Highness" had come back to him!

Things always happened when the girl born with the caul was around. Two days of Maggie—the poor soul's dismay at having one more mouth to feed from her horde, her querulousness and her constant furtive suggestions of the almshouse and Potter's Field—convinced Minnie that she and Pop and Terry would have to get out.

"I'll pass for sixteen, Pop?" asked "Her Highness" at a bench conference in Bronx Park. The Summer on Long Island, tennis, riding, swimming, dancing, had built up her body and tanned her fair skin. Sea and sun had given a poor growth to her soft black hair. She was tall for her age, her young shoulders well squared.

"Easy, Min," he replied.

"I'm going to get out and get a job."

"There ain't any jobs, Min."

"I'll get one."

She did with ease. She could make change correctly. It was enough for her to know. The proprietor of the Golden Hind Restaurant and Cabaret down on One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street, her on a high chair in the cashier's booth near the entrance where passing throngs might glimpse this "good-looker," regain lost appetites and enter. The first day the business increased; it kept on climbing.

"She's an exception!" said Mr. Goldfarb to his partner, Mr. Bloom.

"Don't let her leave us," warned Mr. Bloom, "them Broadway beauties have nothing on her."

Minnie reached home on pay day with twenty-five dollars and memories of a rather exciting working week.

"And look at this, Min," laughed Pop. He showed her a letter from the furniture manufacturer to whom he had applied for a job as a night watchman and who had told him there was nothing to watch. A job was waiting for him.

The next day, Sunday, they found a tiny flat. On Monday Pop landed his job, to begin that night at eight o'clock. That afternoon an installment house furnished their new home. That night they said goodbye to the miserable Maggie and Mrs. Fogarty. Terry went with them to the flat.

"We'll make it yet, Highness," laughed Pop.

"Pop, we've got everything we could want to have."

"Well, I might like to have the Prince of Wales for a son-in-law, Highness."

Minnie went to work at four in the afternoon and was off duty at midnight. Pop, at eight in the evening and back to the flat with some. The hours fitted nicely, giving them plenty of waking time together. He always escorted "Her Highness" to the job and, leaving Terry in charge of the furniture plant, took a half hour off to get her safely home. The gray-haired caller for the little flower in the cashier's booth soon became familiar to the cabaret patrons. Minnie had taken the name of Dolan and Pop was known as her father.

When the Spring came again, the Dolans took a much better apartment. Pop's employer providing for the new home nearly everything that his plant could manufacture in the furniture line. The apartment overlooked the park and was just far enough away from the lions and tigers, as Minnie pointed out, to make the evening mealtime roar sound pleasantly like distant Summer thunder.

Minnie's employers would not let her go. They liked Minnie, the waiters liked her, the cooks and scullions liked her, the patrons were attracted by her looks and her good humor. Both Goldfarb and Bloom were decent family men and she was as safe in their cabaret as she would have been in a cloister.

And one bright day the Golden Hind a young man—handsome, with crisp blonde hair, blue eyes, cleft chin, manly shoulders—clad in sporty raiment.

The blue eyes became glued to the glass beyond which sat Minnie.

With what seemed a tremendous effort, the young man tore himself free of the spell and passed on, peering into other windows until finally he turned back to the Golden Hind and this time entered.

"Hello, Queen," said Bill Duffy, now of the Identification Bureau, Police Headquarters.

"Oh, Mr. Duffy!"

"You're looking swell."

"Thank you, Mr. Duffy."

He put an elbow on the ledge between them and, leaning over, whispered, "Call me Bill, please. Please call me Bill, Queen. How's Pop?"

For nearly a year he had been hunting her, had even traced through the S. P. C. A. records the owners of bull terriers in hopes of finding Pop. He had asked the aid of the Missing Persons Bureau and had secured a photograph of Minnie from the tabloid that had printed her picture the time of the sweepstakes riot and had sent copies of it with complete description to all police stations.

"But every body muffed," he said. "The cops sometimes muffed nothing. Queen, except human statuary or just links of bologna. When d'you get off?"

"Midnight."

"It's my night off. I'll eat eight or nine meals here to kill time. When do you dine?"

"Right this minute, before the dinner hour rush starts."

"Join me."

Minnie introduced Bill to her employers who greeted him warmly and informed him that he was their guest.

"Queen," confessed the Kid, his eyes wet with emotion, "I thought I'd die at times. I couldn't dope it out why either you or Pop didn't tip me where you were and I thought maybe both of you were dead. Honest, Queen. I couldn't find anybody that might get me a start on the right track. I even went to the parish priest and got a record of your christening, thinking I might get track of you were dead. Godmother. I found you were born in nineteen-thirteen but Mrs. Clancy your godmother, had croaked, and her husband, your godfather, had been missing for the last ten years, so he wouldn't know. Get me?"

"Yes, Bill. It's so good to see you again."

"Thanks, Queen. But how was it you thought you was thirteen last year when you was over sixteen?" he asked.

Minnie gave the matter quick thought. "I guess mother wanted to keep me a kid so I wouldn't go away like the others did. That must have been it, Bill."

"Sure, the poor soul!"

"Pop works nights," she informed him. "We've got a spare room and you could stay with us tonight and in the morning we could have a swell reunion."

"But—but," stammered the police Adonis, "you know we're engaged and you're goin' on eighteen instead of fourteen, Queen. Pop might kick."

"That's right. Well, we can go by Pop's job and spend the rest of the night with him."

They had come to the end of the meal and the appetit was brought by Mr. Goldfarb himself. The "Kid" tasted it and closed his eyes.

"Baby!" he exclaimed. "Save a case of that for the wedding!"

Heavy Rains Leach Nutrients From Dry Range Grasses

Supplemental Feeding Is Required To Restore Proteins And Minerals Lest Herd, Continuing On Depleted Feed, Should Become Unthrifty

By IVAN W. LILLEY
Farm Advisor

After comparatively heavy rains have fallen on dry range grasses, stockmen have noticed that animals kept on this feed without any supplemental feeding tend to lose weight and after a long period become unthrifty.

The five major types of nutrients in good feed are carbohydrates, protein, minerals, fats, and vitamins. Green feeds contain all of these. After the plants commence to mature, there is an increase in the proportion of carbohydrates and a decrease in the proportion of proteins and minerals. After the feed is completely dried, Vitamin A is practically absent. When heavy rain falls on dry feed, the digestible proteins and the minerals, both calcium and phosphorus, are leached out. In order to replace the protein that is leached out, supplemental feeding of some type of green feed, green hay, or cotton seed cake will restore the protein.

To completely restore the minerals and supply sufficient minerals for dry feed that has not been leached out, the feeding of steamed bone meal is a common practice, since it contains both calcium and phosphorus. Animals are able to store a reserve of Vitamin A in the liver. After several months of feeding on grasses that are deficient in Vitamin A, the reserve is exhausted, resulting in premature calving or lambing.

Where cotton seed is used as a supplement to dry range, forty-three per cent of the seed is used as a supplement to dry range, forty-three per cent of the seed is used as a supplement to dry range.

GRANGE NEWS NOTES

POMONA GRANGE

The seventy first meeting of the El Dorado-Amador Pomona Grange was held in the Pleasant Valley Grange Hall, Tuesday, September 2. Master Harvey Jameson presided.

The masters or representatives of the respective Granges gave their reports.

The application for membership of Ruth McLaughlin was read and accepted; whereupon she received the fifth degree obligation given by Ben Brown.

Master Harvey Jameson announced that the next Four-County Grange meeting would be held at Plymouth on September 28.

Favorable comments were made on the El Dorado County Fair exhibits. All were cordially invited to the Amador Fair on September 19, 20, and 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Springer were named delegates to the State Grange Convention in the event that the master is unable to attend.

An invitation that Pomona Grange meet with Ione Grange on October 12 was extended and duly accepted. A discussion on the necessity of eradicating Klamath weed was had and methods of control were suggested.

per cent cake can be purchased in sheep-sized pellets or nut size. The sheep should be started on approximately one-eighth of a pound per head per day and the amount gradually increased until feeding up to a half pound per head per day, if necessary. Cattle should be started on one-half pound per head per day and increased gradually to a maximum of four or five pounds per head per day. The maximum will depend upon the type of feed available and the condition of the livestock.

The bone meal can be fed in troughs. If stock are slow to eat the bone meal, part of it can be fed with from one-third to one-half coarse ground salt which will often get the animal started to taking the bone meal. Salt, of course, should be available to livestock at all times.

Fats are present in most feeds, particularly in grains and seeds.

Accurate tests have shown that it is more economical to keep stock in fairly good condition than to let them become poor and then have to feed them back to condition.

state specifically whether RAF personnel had been sent into Russia to fly the fighter planes against the Luftwaffe. But it seemed likely that the British would not gamble their best aircraft in the hands of Soviet fighter pilots unfamiliar with these machines.

Nor did London reveal the route by which the RAF planes had been sent into Russia. It seemed likely, however, that the planes went in both by the long northern route to Murmansk and Archangel and by the southern route to Transcaucasia from the middle east.

The British air offensive against Italy opened with a rush.

For the first time since last January 12 British long range bombers made a 1600-mile round trip flight from bases in Britain to attack the heart of industrial Italy, the great cities of Genoa, Turin and Milan.

The British planes blasted at the Fiat and Caproni works and the Royal Italian arsenal and were reported to have set great fires in what was described officially as the heaviest attack of the war on Italian objectives.

At the same time bombing squadrons from middle eastern bases again attacked Sicily, concentrating on Messina. Almost nightly attacks have been made for some time by middle eastern planes on objectives in southern Italy and Sicily, for the most part Axis air bases. Rome admitted the British attacks, reporting that at least two persons were killed and a number wounded.

These were not the only indications of growing British air power. RAF squadrons in the middle east were said to have been powerfully reinforced and from Capetown came the report that Britain has accumulated such a large store of men, machines and munitions in the middle east that there may shortly be launched a powerful offensive in Libya, designed to drive the Germans and Italians out of Africa.

The developments in Japan were obscured by euphemisms and vagueness. However, it seemed likely that there had been a showdown before the emperor between the relatively moderate Konoye and the army extremists and that the emperor had backed Konoye.

NEVADA PROPERTY TAKEN BY FORMER OPERATOR IN COUNTY MINING

The old England gold and silver mine in the Dutch Flat district north of Winnemucca has been leased by Albert A. Beard, who formerly operated properties in El Dorado County, Calif., says a Winnemucca dispatch to a Sacramento paper.

The England, developed to a depth of 170 feet by a shaft, is said to contain a three foot ledge of profitable ore.

Beard leased the property from Jake Cowan, owner of an adjacent productive quicksilver mine, and has begun operations. Rich ore is reported to have been shipped from the England more than sixty years ago, when silver was worth about $120 an ounce and operating costs were fairly low.

Mrs. C. A. Schuit, of Placerville, was treated for cuts and bruises at Sacramento's emergency hospital day this week following a traffic collision involving a car in which she was riding.

PALO ALTO GIRL BRIDE OF COUNTY MAN IN RITES AT SACRAMENTO

Miss Artha Adele Taylor and Alfred William Jones of Youngs, were united in marriage at Sacramento, Friday night, September 5th. The wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Latter Day Saints, 24th and K Streets. Bishop E. C. Burdick of Sacramento officiated.

Just before the ceremony, Mrs. George Santos sang "At Dawning." Throughout the ceremony, the organ played softly. The bride wore a full costume suit of teal blue with a becoming hat to match and was given in marriage by her father, Fred A. Taylor. The maid of honor was Miss Amanda Day, of Menlo Park, attired in a full costume suit of forest green, with a large hat.

The church was decorated with ferns, gladioluses, and tropical plants. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social hall, where refreshments were served. Then, the bride's cake and the wedding cake were cut, and shared by all and the large array of beautiful presents was viewed and admired.

About one hundred friends and relatives were present, some of whom came from San Francisco, Berkeley, Modesto and Palo Alto.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tappan, of Youngs, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Sarah Jones of Youngs. Mr. Jones attended school in El Dorado County. The bride attended Sacramento high school, the Sacramento Junior College, and the Nurses Training School, of Franklin Hospital, in San Francisco.

The couple will make their home at Lake Tahoe, where Mr. Jones is employed.

DEFENSE METAL SAVINGS IS REPORTED BY TELEPHONE FIRM

A saving of more than five million pounds of metal vital to defense needs, including enough aluminum to build more than 275 fighter planes, is being effected by the Bell System this year through a materials substitution program, according to J. G. Hearn, local manager of the telephone company.

Made possible through long range planning, research, and re-adjustments in manufacturing, the substituting of materials in 1941 will divert for use in defense work nearly 1,700,000 pounds of aluminum, almost a third of a million pounds of nickel, well over three million pounds of zinc and 8,300 pounds of magnesium. Additional reductions are foreseen for 1942.

Efforts to conserve vital materials reach to all parts of the system. Telephone companies throughout the country are using much old equipment which might normally be replaced, so that new equipment may be used at other locations where the need is greater. Dial installations in some communities are being deferred, used switchboards are being reused, cables are being resheathed and reused.

Supplementing the Bell System's substitution and conservation program are the reclamation activities it has been carrying on since 1931, when the Nassau Smelting and Refining Company was acquired for the purpose of reclaiming junked material. Many of the materials used in the telephone equipment are not expended, but can be reclaimed and reused.

The Nassau Smelting and Refining Company last year supplied the system with more than 42,000,000 pounds of metal. This was obtained chiefly from non-ferrous metals in outworn equipment, structures, and supplies junked by the operating telephone companies.

GERMANS DROP LEAFLETS ON LENINGRAD WARNING OF AIR BLITZ

BERLIN (UP)—The high command, in leaflets dropped by German airplanes, has called on Leningrad's 3,000,000 people to surrender or suffer the same fate as Warsaw, competent Nazi quarters said today. The leaflets were reported to have warned that, if the civilian population continued to participate in defenses of the Soviet second city, the Luftwaffe would open all-out day and night attacks and subject Leningrad to ruthless bombardment regardless of the fate of residential areas.

How soon should a New Car begin to lose pick-up?

How soon should it knock?

DO YOU KNOW that these troubles begin, not when your engine starts losing its high compression, but when its high compression becomes still higher?

Few people realize that such increased compression causes knocking sounds — and a sluggish engine — often within the first ten thousand miles.

So, if your engine knocks — or has lost some of that "new-car liveliness" — this may very likely be your trouble. Carbon is responsible.

As carbon collects here, combustion space becomes smaller and smaller, and compression becomes higher and higher

And you can't avoid such carbon deposits completely, regardless of the oil or gasoline you use!

You can go to the expense of having the carbon removed regularly, which will help. Or, for temporary relief, you can have the spark retarded (but if you do this, you'll use up more gasoline).

Or you can take a tip from Shell scientists and switch to Shell Premium — a special motor fuel they've created that compensates for the higher compressions which carbon causes. Shell Premium gasoline will provide maximum, knock-free power every mile you drive.

The secret is simply this: Shell Premium is a blend of finest, clean-burning gasoline fractions and a patented, scientifically prepared anti-knock compound which controls combustion to get utmost efficiency from every drop.

Thus Shell Premium delivers greater power when you want it... gives a new handling ease in traffic. And it delivers top mileage, as well, in new cars and old.

Shell Premium costs 2¢ more than "regular" — or about $1 a month extra if you drive the average amount. We recommend the difference to you.
